WHITEHALL, October 29.

LETTERS from fort St. George, in the East-Indies, dated the 9th of March last, by the ship Durrington, lately arrived, brought the following advices.

On the 28th of November, 1753, the French made an attempt to take Trichenopoly, (by surprize) a strong place belonging to the nabob, in which was a garison commanded by capt. Kilpatrick: They made the attack about four o'clock that morning with 100 Europeans. Their black forces were to make several false attacks on different parts of the town: By the darkness of the night and the carelessness of a guard, they got over the ditch, fixed their ladders, and 600 of them, without firing a shot, got possession of a battery on the outward wall, called Dalton's battery. By this time an accidental shot or two alarmed the garison, who immediately repaired to their posts, and attacked the party on the battery, who defended themselves till daylight, and made several attempts to scale the inward wall and petard the gate, but were kept off by the garison. By day break, those that did not chuse to venture their necks by jumping off of the battery to save themselves, called out for quarters, which was given them. There were taken on the battery 297 European prisoners, besides sixty five wounded, and forty two killed in the ditch, and nine officers: the rest of their loss was not known, but it was believed must have been pretty considerable. In this action the garison had scarce any loss.

From the time of the before mentioned action, until the middle of February following, nothing material happened, when col. Lawrence, who was then encamped near Trichenopoly, was obliged, according to custom, to send a party to escort provisions to the camp, consisting of 1230 Europeans, eight officers, about 500 Seapoys, and four pieces of cannon. They marched on the 12th of February, and in their return the 15th were attacked by a party of the enemy, consisting of 120 French, two companies of foreigners, the French troop of 100 men, 1000 Topaies, 6000 Seapoys, all their black cavalry in number about 8000, and seven pieces of cannon. This detachment removed in the night, and came up with col. Lawrence's detached party by break of day, as they were on their march. What men could do they did; but the commanding officer, unfortunately afraid of loosing his baggage, divided his force to save it; upon which the enemy fell in amongst them, and although they paid dearly for it, killed, or took prisoners, almost the whole party.

The governor and council of fort St. George, on receiving advice of this action, dispatched two vessels with troops on board for fort St. David, to join col. Lawrence, where they arrived about the middle of March last; and the colonel advises that his men were in good spirits, and only wished for an opportunity to repair this slip of their countrymen.

Those two vessels were convoyed to fort St. David by the Durrington, lately arrived in England; and the company have received no advices of a later date than the time of that ship's departure from India, which was about the middle of March.

LONDON, October 22.

On thursday Mr. Johnson, one of his majesty's messengers, set out from the secretary of state's office with dispatches to the earl of Albemarle at Paris, relating to the final determination of the differences subsisting in the East Indies and Virginia.

On friday last one hundred men were draughted out of the five companies of lord Bury's regiment quartered in Bristol, in order to join the troops at Cork, which are to form the regiments destined for Virginia. Immediately after the draught they marched to Pill, where vessels were lying for their reception; and were soon followed by one hundred men from col. Buckland's regiment quartered at Salisbury.

On saturday the right hon. lord Boyd captain of a company in Sir Peter Halket's regiment of foot in Ireland, appointed to go to Virginia, arrived in town from Scotland.

The Dublin journal informs us, that for the honour of Ireland, Mr. Joseph Ravell of Drogheda, has invented a machine that will be of the greatest use in astronomy, surveying, navigation, gunnery, and several other branches of the mathematics; for, from one station, it shews the distance of an object within sight, as accurately as if measured with a chain on even ground, and at the same time shews the elevation or depression thereof to a second, as well as the bearing. By it any one who can multiply by two or three figures, may in a few minutes, determine the exact shape and dimensions of all the sea coast within sight, from any eminent station, to the greatest exactness; as also the distance and path-way of a ship at sea, tho' her tacks be ever so frequent, with her true distance from any rock, island, or other object at sea within sight. He has exhibited this instrument, and demonstrated the use thereof by many experiments to several persons of skill in Dublin.

It is now said, that the promotion of admirals, which will very soon take place, is as follows: Digby Dent, Temple West, George Pocock, and the hon. George Townshend, Esqrs. those gentlemen being the four senior officers on the list of captains.

Oct. 24 Next week lieutenant colonel Mercer, of sir William Pepperell's regiment, and lieutenant colonel Ellison, of col. Shirley's regiment, to be raised in America and the other officers of those regiments are to embark on board a man of war at Spithead for Virginia.

Yesterday after the proclamation was over at the south side of the Royal Exchange, for the parliament to meet for the dispatch of business the 18th of November next, a large bullock made his public entry on the Exchange, to a great concourse of eminent merchants of all nations, and after a few salutations withdrew. The same bullock a little time before did the same at Guildhall, to several suiters at the court of requests.

We learn by private letters from Petersburgh, that some proposals have been lately made to the court about reviving the trade of the Caspian sea, by means of an annual fleet, to be built at the expence of the crown, the ships to be commanded by Russian officers, or at least officers in the Russian service; but merchants and their goods to be transported at a reasonable rate, with a sufficient force to escort and protect them. In case this project can be brought to bear, it is intended to make Astracan the mart where all Persian commodities are to be vended. But 'till the troubles of Persia are some way or another at an end, it is not easy to conceive, how a scheme of this sort can be carried into execution with any possible hopes of success.

We learn from Amsterdam, that the master of one of their ships employed in the last year's fishery, has drawn up a short paper, entitled, the travels of a Whale; the intent of which is to shew, from the coasts whereon, and the seasons in which those fish are found, there must be a free circulation of waters, and consequently a North East and a North West, as well as South-East and South-West passages. As it is written in a succinct, lively and entertaining manner, it gives general satisfaction.

This day at noon it was reported, that the affairs in America were likely to be adjusted in an amicable manner, and that the expedition would be laid aside; but how far this is true a short time will discover.

We hear that major Burton, of the second troop of horse grenadier guards, will go with the forces to America, to be lieutenant colonel of one of the new-raised regiments.

It is reported that this court has guaranty'd the treaty
